in person or online

Whether it be an in-person conference or retreat or virtual gathering, I would love to be a part of your next event. Combining stories from my own life—mistakes and all—wisdom from God’s Word, humor, and relatable metaphors to create interest, I share vulnerably about how God’s redeeming grace transformed me to soar and then boldly encourage, equip, and empower other women to soar with unwavering faith, unshakeable courage, undeniable clarity, and unrelenting strength. I speak to women, parents, and youth.

the best fit for you

I know that finding the right speaker for your next event is of utmost importance to you. The wrong person can leave your audience feeling unfulfilled and disappointed. But the right person can reach the heart of your audience, inspiring inquisitive conversations, a desire for deeper growth, and transformation that will continue long after your event. I also realize how quickly you can spend countless hours researching speakers and trying to find the right one to help you fulfill your goals as an event planner. My hope is, as you read about me and get to know me, you’re able to get a feel for who I am and the truth and passion of my heart.

would love to connect

It would be a joy and sweet honor to be a part of your next event, and I would love the opportunity to visit with you personally if you feel I could be a potential fit for your audience and need.
